Areas of fog, dense in places, are likely to cause travel delays this morning

What to expect

- Slower journey times with delays to bus and train services possible
- There is a chance of delays or cancellations to flights

Further details

Areas of fog, including some dense patches reducing visibility to less than 100 metres at times, will impact travel during the morning rush hour. Fog will, however, slowly lift and clear through this morning.

What should I do?

Give yourself the best chance of avoiding delays by checking road conditions if driving, leaving extra journey time, or amending plans if necessary. Make sure you know how to switch on your fog lights, and check they are working before setting off on your journey.
